WASHINGTON

Immigration from Madeira Urged.

Washington, May 16.—[Special.]—L. Dupont Lyle, United States consul at Funchal, Madeira, in a report to the state department, says: "I beg to call the attention of governors, legislatures and planters in the southern states to the supply of labor fitted for cotton and sugar culture which is procurable in Madeira. Goldschmidt has already pointed this out in a report which I enclosed to the state department January 24, 1883. From that report it may also be seen that Madeira is one of the most densely populated districts in the world, it having 490 inhabitants to the square mile. For some years past there has been a steady immigration from the Azores. In 1879 there was emigration from Madeira to the Sandwich Islands. Mr. John Hutchinson, United States vice consul and consul for the Sandwich Islands, informs me that within two months he expects to send off about 1000 emigrants to Honolulu from this port. I am sure the Madeira peasantry would go more willingly to the United States than to the Sandwich Islands, as the American government is the most popular here. The average peasant would willingly become an American citizen. He is pleasant, well acquainted with the culture of sugar cane, is industrious, submissive to authority and not addicted to drink. He is constitutionally adapted to a semi tropical climate and would flourish anywhere south of latitude 37."

Increase in the Exportation of Whisky

Washington, May 16.—The acting secretary of the treasury had a consultation to-day with Clay, collector of customs at Newport, Va., in regard to the exportation of bonded whisky from that port to Bermuda. The collector said this business was increasing to such an extent that additional help was absolutely necessary. Five thousand barrels of whisky were now at that port awaiting shipment, and he is informed that certain exporters, for whom a New York firm is acting as agent, expect to ship whisky to Bermuda at the rate of from 5000 to 10,000 barrels a month. Clay says his present force could only gauge about sixty or seventy barrels a day, and could not begin work until the exporting case arrived. The acting secretary informed him that a force of gaugers from Richmond would be sent to his assistance. The subject will be laid before Secretary Folger to-morrow.

[illegible] San Joaquin [illegible] careful estimates [illegible] 1,800,000 bushels. In some sections of the Napa valley rains and high winds injured the crops, and the same is reported from some of the northern counties, where late rains rusted the grain and a good deal will have to be cut for hay. To summarize, our unusual May rains have tended to benefit the wheat in the middle and southern sections and to injure the northern hay crop, which has been more or less damaged throughout the state. The fruit crop is affected to a large extent similar to wheat; the most in northern counties. A large proportion of fruits except apples and pears was destroyed, but the southern counties have been benefitted by the rain. The grape yield will be large. The Fresno locality will give an enormous quantity, as over 8000 new acres begin to yield this year.

THE WAR ON CHINESE.

The Recent Attack by a Mob upon Coolies at the North Most Brutal and Cowardly

Victoria, May 16.—[Special.]—Accounts from the main land show that the conduct of the men who attacked the Chinese to have been cowardly and brutal. The white men who had an altercation with the Chinese in the day time were not hurt, having beaten the Chinese off with pickhandles. Tuesday night when the gang were in bed in their houses the camp was attacked by a crowd of white men who surrounded it armed with clubs, with which they struck the Chinese. As they rushed out of the cabins in the dark they were struck down and some of them unmercifully beaten. A good many escaped, but nine were left on the ground for dead. The mob hastily set fire to the houses and decamped as soon. The whites and some of the Chinese hastened back and tried to put out the fires and save the goods and clothing, but water was not at hand and everything was burned up.

THE DEAD AND WOUNDED

At daylight they gathered up the wounded and found one man that was speechless. He died at 8 A. M. The Chinese sent to Lytton for wagons to bring the murdered man and wounded to town. There being no white doctor willing to assist the Chinese, a Chinese doctor from Yale was sent for, who gave it as his opinion that three more men would die.

An inquest was held Thursday and Friday and it was found that it was impossible to get a jury of twelve disinterested men, as the feeling was too strong against the Chinamen. The jury returned a verdict that deceased came to his death from violence at the hands of parties unknown. The whole of the nine Chinese had frightful wounds about the head, and in one severe case the brains appeared to be oozing from the skull. The coroner found it impossible to procure medical examination of the man. There was no evidence to justify the arrest of suspected parties, as though time will probably sift the matter.

Murder at Winnemucca

Winnemucca, May 16.—This morning a man named Thomas Moore, employed in a livery stable here, died suddenly. The jury found that deceased came to his death at the hands of Joseph Pergue. Pergue, who has the reputation of being a rough character, was arrested and is now in jail. He was indicted here three years ago for assault with intent to kill and he left the country, returning lately.

FINAL SOLUTION

Though some of the interests involved as well as the combination that will be made [illegible] can be fully outlined even at this early stage of the contest. Despite the efforts made to keep the gossip within the charmed circle it is positively asserted by prominent railroad officials who have been interviewed by the Oregonian's correspondent that the war would result in either of two important questions being definitely agreed upon, namely a pool against the lines which would refuse to ratify the contract recently submitted, or a general as well as individual contest between northern, southern and eastern roads, the latter especially applying to the Central and the Union Pacific. Evidence is already given that in either event and notwithstanding any defeat that may result from the arbitration the war will be carried into Portland. During the past week it is known that a representative of an eastern line has gone there, and that [illegible]

AGENTS OF EASTERN TRUNK LINES

Are on their way there from Chicago. It is currently reported here that a ticket was recently sold by an agent of an eastern railway in Portland at $5 more than he would have to pay had he purchased his ticket in this city after making due allowance for fare from Portland here by steamer. It is learned from private sources that the carrying of the war into Portland was anticipated long ago by the Chicago and Northwestern railroad, which will establish an agency in Portland and which is expected to act in harmony with the Northern Pacific. The rumor has acquired such proportions that the name of W. H. Mead is mentioned in connection with the appointment. When spoken to he stated that he knew nothing of it, adding he had enough in the office of the Union Pacific to keep him busy. It is also reported that should the Chicago and Northwestern establish an agency in Portland the Rock Island and Chicago and the Milwaukee and St. Paul railroads will do likewise.

BREWERS IN COUNCIL

The National Association Convenes at Detroit—The First Days Proceedings

Detroit, May 16.—The twenty third annual convention of the National Brewers' Association assembled this morning in this city in Harmonie hall, which was beautifully decorated for the occasion with flowers and mottoes. The delegates were formally received last evening when a musical concert was given and brief addresses of welcome rendered by Michael Marx, chairman, and Mayor Thompson, the latter giving the delegates a cordial greeting. H. B. Scharmann replied gracefully in behalf of his associates to the welcoming address.

When the convention was called to order F. W. Voight, on behalf of the local brewers and citizens of Detroit, welcomed the members of the convention to the city. This was followed by an address by the president, H. B. Scharmann, of Brooklyn, closing with the statement that the principal business before the convention would be the adjustment of the hop tax question and the reduction or abolition of the tax on beer. The report of the vigilance committee recited the canvass that led to prohibition in Kansas and Iowa and treated of the tariff and touched on the iniquities of the tariff commission in respect to granulated rice in practically effecting an increase of nearly 100 per cent in the duty, viz: from [illegible] ad valorem to [illegible] cents per pound.

THE ATTORNEY'S REPORT

Richard Kabe, mayor of New York, read the report of the board of trustees. It states that there has been considerable increase of membership, although a large number of brewers have not yet joined. The importance of the association should secure the unanimous support of all interested in the business. It states that 30 firms using [illegible] three fourths of the beer of the country responded affirmatively to a circular sent out in August concerning a settlement of the tax on hops. Subsequently a conference with hop growers and dealers resulted in the adoption of rules and regulations by boards of trade and produce exchanges throughout the country. The report condemns the analysis of beer made at the expense of local brewers as unsatisfactory, but expresses confidence in any analysis made by state or county authority, and willingness to accept such as to the purity of beer. Reference was made to the efforts before the last congress to have the internal revenue tax on beer removed and the failure of the effort. It was intimated that the subject would likely be pressed upon the attention of the next congress. The association was congratulated on the defeat in the house of the measure which passed the senate, increasing the duty on bottles from 35 to 150 per cent ad valorem. The compromise rate of one cent per pound is regarded as oppressive, but it is claimed it would have been prohibitory. A test case from Kansas, touching the scope of prohibitory law in destroying private business, has been made at the expense of the national association and will be carried to the United States superior court. Senator Vest of Missouri has been retained as counsel and thanks are extended for his aid in defeating the objectionable measure.

AN APPEAL

The report concludes as follows: We again call your attention to the fact that a considerable number of brewers are not active members of this association and that they lack connection, especially notable in some states where our active sympathy and material aid is most frequently demanded. It is a matter of prudence that this body should be strengthened by the affiliation of every brewer who knows and what brewer does not that only by union we can resist the encroachments of narrow minded fanaticism and raise our business to a high position among the needful industries of the land. In conclusion we congratulate you upon the fact that during ast year fanaticism received a marked rebuke from the people at the ballot box.

Lewis Schade, attorney, detailed his labors in connection with defeating legislation by congress detrimental to the interests of the employers. Wherever the legislature was about passing prohibitory amendments he took the [illegible] professional delegation from these states and ask their interference. West Virginia, Delaware, Missouri, Texas, Arkansas, Maryland, Kentucky, Pennsylvania and other states were the defeat of the prohibitory constitutional amendments to the direct interference of their members and workers in congress.

Votes of thanks were given Commissioner Raum and his deputy, Rogers.

Frederick Lauer, the retiring president, delivered a farewell address.

H. H. Reuter, of Boston, responded.

The chair then appointed the different committees and the convention adjourned until to-morrow.

Lisbon, May 16.—During a popular fete to-day a dynamite bomb exploded, killing four persons and wounding twenty.

THE CYCLONE

Further Particulars from Devastated Sections—Appalling Loss of Life and Property

Macon, Mo., May 16.—[Special.]—The cyclone which visited this section Sunday evening was more destructive to farm property southwest of Macon than here. It seems it spent most of its fury before reaching Macon. The first appearance of the storm was near Hagerville, fifteen miles southwest of this city. A ride in with the storm cloud struck the residence of L. E. Miller, destroying it, his barn and other outhouses and injuring several members of the family. A fine apple orchard was also nearly destroyed. The next building destroyed was the residence of J. A. Summers. His barn and outhouses were badly damaged and an apple orchard was wrecked. The residence of John Clarkson was destroyed and his wife killed. The residences of R. Bellamy, Wesley Banta, Hines Banta and James Banta were wrecked. The latter was occupied by Charles Busler, who was seriously injured. The residence and barn of James Miller and A. L. Summers' house were totally destroyed. The residence of B. Summers was blown down and the wreck destroyed by fire. The residence of A. M. Smith was torn into kindling wood and he was seriously hurt.

THE CYCLONE IN MACON

At Macon [illegible] houses in the southern part of town—small and occupied by colored people—were totally destroyed, and a colored man and woman were fatally injured. The other buildings destroyed were the M. E. church, colored school house, slaughter house, two story brick smoke house [illegible] of the residence of C. F. [illegible] of A. Rogers, and the livery stable of H. D. Houston. Numerous stables were blown down and houses unroofed. The farm houses destroyed were chiefly of the best and most [illegible] in the country. [illegible] 250 persons [illegible] in the country [illegible] the loss of the sufferers. It is said that fully seventy five [illegible] will have to be rebuilt.

THE CYCLONE IN INDIANA AND OHIO

Cincinnati, May 16.—Reports have been received of [illegible] Monday night's storm in Indiana and Ohio, showing that the cyclone swept a course near a twelve miles in length about six miles north of Cincinnati, and in width a few rods, striking the little village of Waterloo and destroying every house but [illegible] and doing great damage to farms in its path [illegible] A drill from bridge over Whitewater river was whirled to pieces. In the southern part of Wayne county [illegible] and much damage was done to farm houses. The same storm passed through Preble county, Ohio, unroofing barns, [illegible] damage estimated at $10,000.

Further east at Germantown and Miamisburg there was severe [illegible] immense damage to [illegible] Fruit was almost wholly destroyed.

[illegible] ORATION [illegible]

[illegible] Washington Yesterday [illegible]

Washington, May 16.—[Special.]—The present [illegible] number of people who will attend [illegible] though the trains today may bring in crowds enough to justify [illegible] The literary and musical programme for the banquet Thursday night has been made. The president [illegible] Sherman for the Army; Admiral [illegible] Rogers for the Navy; Attorney General [illegible] Armies of the West; General McClellan [illegible] General Hingham for the Army of the Potomac; Gilbert S. Babcock for the Loyal Legion; E. A. Walker, commandant for the "Volunteers"; Isaac Bromley for the "Press"; Commissioner Edmunds for the City of Washington; ex-Governor Curtin, if present, for the "War Governors"; Commander Dudley for the "Grand Army," and Charles Dudley Warner for "Sweethearts and Wives."

Washington, May 16.—The Society of the Army of the Potomac, whose reunion occurred here to-day, had all that could be desired in point of weather for their street display. During the forenoon the air was enlivened with the music of martial bands, and the streets were filled with uniformed bodies of volunteer and regular soldiery. The procession was brought to a halt in front of the white house and was received by the president, cabinet and members of foreign legations. After a review the members of the Society of the Army of the Potomac were received by the president at the white house.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS

A general business meeting of the society was held this afternoon and after the transaction of routine matters President Humphreys announced as the next business in order the election of officers for the ensuing year. Up to this point perfect order and unanimity had marked the proceedings. The scene however which ensued, and the discussion which took place in the course of the next three-quarters of an hour, recalled most vividly the closing hours of the forty fifth congress. Motions and amendments, calls to order, appeals to the chair, which the chair could not hear, or if he could could not make himself heard to reply, followed one another in rapid succession.

FOR PRESIDENT

Nominations for president having been declared in order General Ransom of North Carolina, in behalf of the sixth corps, announced the name of that grand old soldier General John Newton.

As soon as the applause which greeted this announcement had somewhat subsided, Major Steiner shouted at the top of his voice the nomination by the fifth corps of General Grant. Cheers and cries of "Grant! Grant!" "Vote for Newton!" "Vote for Grant!" for some minutes made it impossible for anyone to score or for the gentlemen who were on their feet to be heard.

A STORMY SCENE.

Then followed a running discussion as to General Grant's eligibility. Some one from the stage declared that he was an honorary member.

A voice from the audience replied, "He hasn't paid his dues."

Another called out, "For fourteen years he declined to become a member of our society. Why burden him with this honor now?"

It was moved to proceed with the ballot, and General Mann then arose and stated that after consultation with several of his associates of the sixth corps, as there seemed to be a general desire to elect Grant, and he would withdraw his motion.

This was a signal for renewed commotion, accompanied by cries of "good!" and "don't withdraw!" which was heightened when General Barnum, of Connecticut, in ringing tones, announced that he would withdraw the name of General Grant.

A voice: "What right have you to withdraw him?"

General Barnum: "As presiding officer of the fifth corps at their meeting to-day, and because I know personally that Grant, though he was thought not unworthy to command us at Appomattox, does not desire onerous duty in this time of peace and would not permit his name to become a subject of controversy. If there is a single objection I withdraw his name."

The president being utterly unable to make himself heard General Horatio G. King, the secretary, essayed to straighten out matters, and finally the nominations of Generals Grant and Newton were renewed and balloting proceeded.

GRANT DEFEATED.

After the appointment of several committees the result of the balloting for president was announced as follows: General Newton 155, General Grant 117, scattering [illegible]. Newton's election was made unanimous, and with the exception of president, the old officers were re-elected, and the meeting then adjourned.

EVENING EXERCISES.

The exercises in the evening at the National theater drew together an audience of distinguished, enthusiastic and sympathetic people. General Humphreys, the retiring president, opened the exercises by introducing Judge Edmonds.

While Judge Edmonds was speaking General Sherman came on the stage from one of the wings. As he moved across to a seat in front the veterans caught sight of him and interrupted the speech and gave him a welcome in ringing cheers. Many veterans, in their enthusiasm, stood on their seats and waved their hats.

At the conclusion of Edmond's address the marine band rendered the "Star Spangled Banner," and their president introduced George Alfred Townsend, who, with much feeling, delivered a poem, the reading of which was frequently interrupted by applause.

ORATOR OF THE EVENING

Following the poem came the orator of the evening, Major Martin McMahon, whose address was most eloquent in praise of the valorous achievements of the Army of the Potomac.

There were loud calls for General Sherman when Major Maginnis concluded, and the veteran commander stepped to the front of the stage amid a storm of applause and ringing cheers. He pleasantly alluded to the old saying of the Army of the Potomac, that they didn't want any bummers, and said: "I was the person to whom you was referring." A laughing chorus of denials came from the veterans. The general proceeded to point out that memories of the war were common to all soldiers of the war, to whatever army they belonged. They followed one flag, he said, and fought in one cause, and that cause was the union of the country and preservation of the government transmitted to them by honest forefathers.

Sherman retired and the band played "Marching Through Georgia," members of the society and guests on the stage rising and joining enthusiastically in the chorus.

There were loud calls for Generals Schofield and Slocum and the latter responded in a brief speech.

Telegrams of regret at their inability to be present from Generals Hancock and Sheridan were read. The exercises closed with "Dixie" and "Yankee Doodle," by the band.

Walla Walla Cattle Market.

Walla Walla Watchman

Walla Walla county is no longer a stock country, and this because our public lands once idle uncultivated and covered with bunch grass are to-day farms fenced in and sowed in wheat. Hence it becomes necessary to feed stock, and although they feed stock in all the eastern states and yet raise certain cattle for beef and export it on but here its different. Our stock men tell us it won't pay to raise a calf until it becomes a fat ox and feed it right along, but the day will come when we will raise [illegible] timothy hay and less wheat, and when our farmers will make just as much money from their pastures as they do from their wheat [illegible] A man's first idea when he gets his land is to find a section, half or quarter section of land; his second to put it in wheat. This is all in order, but it is not what it will be in the near future. The high price of cattle will make the bovine creature loom up. Indeed it is already receiving more than usual attention. A few years ago one could buy a pretty good cow for $5 or $8. To-day it brings two twenties and then you are not allowed to count the wrinkles on her horns, and we have no reason to complain whether wheat is up or stock is high. In each case do we hold the winning hand, yet it behooves us to foreshadow the near future. First of all pay more attention to the raising of alfalfa. That's the kind of pasture which will pay best and is inexhaustible, but don't throw the seed carelessly upon the ground, regardless of season or condition of soil. It takes care and time to make a good pasture, but once done you will forever realize its value as it grows older and richer. After you have a good pasture cast your eye about for some good stock. Keep none other than you can help it. The best stock is always the cheapest; costs no more to feed and sells for [illegible] as much, and never fails to bring good paste[illegible] If you can't buy a short horned Durham cow or bull, then try and get a calf, and remember that even though it is small [illegible] westward of the leader you will get [illegible] but persevere. "Slow but sure [illegible] wins the [illegible]" says the proverb, and there is more truth in those few words than in will staff maxims. Prepare therefore for good pastures and begin to raise good stock and take care of it. The breeding of useful blood is [illegible] also suffer no decrease, but as that branch of industry has already attracted the attention of our farmers to a gratifying extent we will not dwell upon horse flesh now.

A GOOD COMPARISON.

The Rev. William Roulett, a well-known Methodist clergyman, residing at Naples, draws the following amusing, but apt comparison between Dr. C. McLane's Vermifuge, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., and a ferret.

"A ferret when placed at the entrance of a rat hole, enters the aperture, travels along the passage, seizes upon the rat, exterminates his existence and draws the animal's defunct carcass to the light. And in like manner have I found Dr. C. McLane's Vermifuge to operate upon worms, those dreadful and dangerous tormentors of children. This remedy, like the ferret, enters the aperture of the mouth, travels down the gullet, hunts round the stomach, and lays hold of the worms, shakes the life out of the reptiles, sweeps clean their den, and carries their carcasses clear out of the system. This, at least, has been the effect of the Vermifuge upon my children."

FOREIGN COMMENT ON AMERICA.

Americans often amuse themselves by noting the blunders of foreign comment on American life and affairs. In English newspapers these blunders, as might be expected, are fewer and less grotesque than in journals of the continent. The common language averts many errors. It takes the newspapers of France, Belgium and Italy to produce the most amusing mistakes, not only as to political and other affairs on this continent, but even as to history and geography. When we read of the "buffalo "out on the prairies beyond Pittsburg," or "yellow dust washed out of the beds of rivers coursing from the Rocky mountains to the bay of San Francisco," allowance may be made for a dim idea of the facts. But the case is altered when we are informed that "General Butler, by virtue of his office as president of Massachusetts, will, on the retirement of the present administration at Washington become the head of the national government."

The London Standard, in an article on the mooted retirement of Gould and Vanderbilt from active business, shows, however, that even an English newspaper can commit some very funny mistakes. In this article, in which the leading examples of wealth in this country are passed in review, we are told that "Vanderbilt inherited but a very small portion of his wealth from his father;" that "Mr. Stewart, the dry goods merchant, would undoubtedly have been regarded as a well-to-do person in Europe," and that "the late Peter Cooper of Boston" was an unquestionable millionaire. "But Vanderbilt, Astor and Gould, to say nothing of Stewart and Cooper, "sink into insignificance," says the Standard, "beside Mr. Mackey of Nevada, whose silver mines (the ex-[illegible] Comstock bonanza) yield more abundantly than ever did those of Potosi," and [illegible] income has been stated at as much as a [illegible] dollars a week." With an income of [illegible] a year for Mr. Mackey, the mining [illegible] speculations, which form his principal [illegible] revenue, must levy contributions on [illegible] number of gudgeons than any one in [illegible] country conceives.

[illegible] mistaken in the London newspaper [illegible] that the growth of fortunes like [illegible] Gould, Vanderbilt and Mackey is re-[illegible] complacency in this country as an [illegible] what may be achieved by others. [illegible] taking pride in the specula-[illegible] has enlarged and concen-[illegible] than which nothing could [illegible]. The vast majority of [illegible] this country hold the belief [illegible] political power is safest when [illegible] the greatest number of hands, [illegible] of great fortunes and [illegible] to them with grave ap-[illegible] they lose sight of the [illegible] involved in the [illegible] and great wealth [illegible] so commonly employed. [illegible] who [illegible] looks upon the evi-[illegible] heaped up in San [illegible] manipulation of mining [illegible] at the same time that [illegible] reached through methods by [illegible] were purposely deluded and [illegible]. Success may throw a [illegible] but never can hide [illegible].

[illegible] admit that the English peo-[illegible] much of America as the [illegible] of England. A noted Eng-[illegible] Edward A. Free-[illegible] just published in [illegible] his impressions of [illegible] this, but says [illegible] for it, and he is right. [illegible] American history without [illegible] history but the [illegible] small a part of the [illegible] Englishman may be [illegible] the minute details [illegible] literature, customs, geo-[illegible] the multitude of things [illegible] familiar, suggest Eng-[illegible]. Our studies in almost [illegible] back to English ori-[illegible] on this at length [illegible] thought is pertinent to [illegible] knowledge which each [illegible].

[illegible] OF SITUATION.

[illegible] the French commis-[illegible] Oregon, now in [illegible] California and the [illegible] territories afford the [illegible] French immigration in this [illegible] many respects corre-[illegible] of France and the industries [illegible] are best acquainted [illegible] easily and could be [illegible]. There is now a considerable [illegible] French people to America, and [illegible] almost without exception a [illegible] people. They make good citizens, [illegible] be glad to have them. [illegible] "this side of the continent" [illegible] in regulating [illegible] our immigration. The cost of [illegible] passage will operate [illegible] the pauper class [illegible] dumped into the At-[illegible]. Only those who have enterprise [illegible] here, and it will only [illegible] who have a little capital [illegible] if Oregon fills [illegible] Minnesota, and some [illegible] did upon their first [illegible] Atlantic by rail, but the [illegible] undoubtedly be a better [illegible]. We shall have the most enter-[illegible] and most thrifty of [illegible] large numbers of native [illegible] looking west for broader [illegible].

[illegible] legislature of New Jersey, at its recent [illegible] an act prohibiting the sale of [illegible] or tobacco in any of its forms to per-[illegible] sixteen years of age, making the [illegible] such persons a misdemeanor punish-[illegible] a fine of twenty dollars for each offense. [illegible] act was not made to apply during the [illegible] minority of the persons thus to be pro-[illegible] an act previously passed by the [illegible] of the same state in regard to the [illegible] of intoxicating liquors, is not explained. But if the act can be enforced even in respect [illegible] up to sixteen years, it will effect [illegible] good. There are physicians, we believe, [illegible] look upon the moderate use of [illegible] by persons of mature years as hurtful; but there are none who do not think its use by young persons, particularly in the form of cigarettes, as most injurious and dangerous. There is uniformity of medical testimony as to the deleterious effect upon the young constitution of the wide spread habit of cigar and cigarette smoking, and the passage of this act and other acts to discourage the practice shows that the public mind is beginning to appreciate the magnitude of an evil which has already made serious inroads upon the health and vigor of the rising generation. But there is a large class of people who have small faith in the efficacy of penal prohibitory acts against the indulgence of vicious appetite, and by them not much good will be anticipated from this experiment with tobacco. But at all times the influence and authority of parents ought to be exercised in full force against the use of a narcotic which saps the vitality of the young and threatens the degeneracy of the race. Moreover the use of tobacco offends even more persons than the use of liquors does; for it is possible to get away from the fumes of whisky and beer and the company of those who use them, but it is scarcely possible to escape the fumes of tobacco which load the air in all directions, indoors and out.

The Boise Statesman complains that the Oregon Short Line is taking pains to avoid that city by adopting a circuitous and longer route, in order to build up rival towns.

WHY OREGON WANTS THE TREATY ABROGATED.

The Chicago Times, so a dispatch reports, thinks it a queer thing that some of the Pacific coast papers insist on abrogation of the Hawaiian treaty since the people here have been so much benefited. The matter is discussed at some length, the Times demonstrating to its own satisfaction that the Pacific coast has been benefited by Claus Spreckels' sugar monopoly. The facts are that the Pacific coast consumers pay from one to two cents per pound more for sugar than they would if the treaty were abrogated, and this goes into the pockets of a single man, Claus Spreckels—who through the free use of money forces competitors out of the Hawaiian islands sugar trade, and subsidizes the transcontinental railroad lines to put such a rate on sugar freights that its importation from the other side is practically impossible. This is the first and great reason why Pacific coast papers "curse Claus Spreckels as a monopolist." In Portland we have a local reason for desiring abrogation of the treaty. Before it was made, three vessels were in the trade between the islands and this city, and the trade gave promise of developing into great proportions. We imported sugar, tropical fruits and other island products, and returned lumber, flour, apples and general merchandise. The exchange was profitable to both countries and the trade was looked upon as one of our bright prospects. But within the first few months following ratification of the treaty our little trade was entirely cut off. Refined sugars which paid a tariff could not be shipped in competition with unrefined sugars which got in free, and as we had no refinery, we could not take the gross product. The basis of our exchange was gone and of course our Island business fell off. We are losers in two ways—first, by payment of extortionate prices for sugar, and second by loss of a profitable foreign business. Political economists may theorize as much as they like but these are facts.

From the annual tables showing the progress of British merchant shipping, it appears that the total tonnage of steam and sailing vessels, with cargo and in ballast (from foreign ports), which entered and cleared at ports of the United Kingdom in 1882 was 61,491,255 tons, as compared with 58,796,063 tons in 1880, 36,540,182 tons in 1870, 24,889,292 tons in 1860, and 14,505,064 tons in 1850. Of the total tonnage, 53,670,361 tons, in 1882, were British, which, like the gross total for the year, was the largest on record. This tonnage compares with 41,348,984 tons in 1880, 25,072,180 tons in 1870, 13,914,913 tons in 1860, and 9,442,514 tons in 1850. The second place in the list is occupied by Norway, which in 1882 had 4,003,853 tons, against 3,573,643 tons in 1881, 4,651,762 tons in 1880 and 4,017,219 in 1876. Germany comes next with 3,554,395 tons in 1882, against 3,221,694 tons in 1881. The United States occupy a humiliating position, far down on the list, with only 719,621 tons, the smallest on record for the great republic, comparing as it does with 926,787 tons in 1881, 1,006,368 tons in 1880, 1,365,909 tons in 1870, and 2,961,697 tons in 1860. Of the total tonnage, 43,240,252 in 1882 was steam, British ships, of course, leading the list with 35,404,015 tons. Again the United States are far down, with 141,950 tons, an improvement, however, over 1881, when it was 124,345 tons. The proportion of British ships entered or cleared, with cargoes or in ballast, to the total tonnage was 71 per cent. in 1882. A similar table regarding the entries and clearances in the United States shows that in 1882 only 19 per cent. of the whole was native. The table relating to the trade with the United States shows a falling off last year, the total entries and clearances with cargoes being 7,731,918 tons, against 8,841,109 tons in 1881, 8,993,831 tons in 1880, 8,017,364 tons in 1879, and 7,087,953 tons in 1873, by far the largest up to that time.

Within the last twenty years the New England states have more than doubled their number of divorces. Connecticut granted 5075 divorces in fifteen years ending with 1880, or one divorce to ten marriages. Under a change of law the ratio has since been somewhat reduced. Massachusetts, from 243 divorces in 1860, ran the number up to 600 in 1880, or one divorce to about twenty-one marriages. The ratio is about the same in New Hampshire, and is one to eight in Maine, and one to ten in Rhode Island. In no part of the United States has there been greater change during the past quarter of a century in the character of the population than in New England. The old stock, with its austere habits and severe morality has been diminished by emigration to the west, and the character of the remaining part has been modified by new forces or their influence overborne by heavy accessions of population from other quarters, chiefly from Europe. A foreign population fills all the manufacturing towns and cities, and these contain the bulk of the inhabitants of the whole section. New England has lost its old character, and such as it once was it never will be again. Crime is prevalent where, twenty-five years ago, it was quite unknown and only in the isolated rural districts, and the most quiet villages is the life of old New England still known and maintained.

THE OREGONIAN hereby records this prediction, viz.: Before the Lappeus "investigation" is over it will be shown to the satisfaction of all decent and honorable people that the accusations upon which it has been attempted to put him out of office were "worked up" by a disreputable and self-seeking gang who want to control the police force of the city; that the Carrie Bradley charge was originated by this gang, suggested to her, and her perjured affidavit to support it procured by them; that the entire scheme, started by persons who are working for personal and political ends and supported by the organ of a professional ring, is founded in dishonor and crime, and that the public will pronounce this verdict when the testimony is all in. The persons whose names were attached to the complaint are not the persons herein referred to at all. They are not the originators of the scheme and cut no figure in it. The principals will appear before all is done.

Obtainment of money in Portland on real estate security is now practically impossible; and it is so to a great extent throughout the state. The mortgage tax law is likely to be the means of closing out many farmers, who will be called on to pay when their mortgages fall due, but who will be unable to get the money by mortgaging again.

It is understood that the editor of the hoodlum and ring organ and ex-officio postmaster of the city has appointed Mr. Mer[illegible] Limarck assistant postmaster, to succeed Mr. Chittenden, resigned. Why wasn't Hon. Alphabet Gault the man who "went down with tears in his eyes," given a show?

As a result of the failure of the prohibitory amendment in Iowa, the license fee for sale of liquors is being increased in all the principal cities and towns of the state. The usual figure is $1000 a year.

The land office at Helena, Montana, is overrun with business. The approach of the Northern Pacific railroad has created an enormous demand for lands.

Heavy Railroad Cut.

Yaquina Post.

For the past six months work has been continually pushed forward at the Wiser cut, and on Wednesday morning the last car load of rock and earth was taken out—the work was done. Although the working force was small the amount of labor performed was good. The entire length of the cut is nearly 400 feet, and the greatest depth twenty feet, and it contained something over 60,000 yards of earth and rock. This is the largest and most expensive cut on the line of the coast division. We wish that some of our valley readers could but view this cut for a few minutes, they would then perhaps be satisfied and convinced that the work done upon the road is of a substantial nature, and not as some represent, a mere scratching around over the ground like child's play.

FARMINGTON, Ill.—Dr. M. T. Gamble says: "I prescribe Brown's Iron Bitters in my practice and it gives satisfaction."

OREGON IMPROVEMENT COMPANY.

Report of the Business of the Company for the Year Ending November 30, 1882.

The company owns by direct title its fleet of steam colliers, the coal lands in western Washington, its agricultural and timber lands and other real estate in eastern Oregon and Washington, a wharf and coal dock at San Francisco, and owns as a stockholder the properties of

The Seattle Coal and Transportation Company, comprising the Newcastle coal mine with all its appurtenances.

The Columbia and Puget Sound Railroad Company, consisting of the railway (twenty-one miles) connecting the Newcastle mine with the port of Seattle, with a coal dock, wharf, sawmill and a large amount of real estate in that town.

The Pacific Coast Steamship Company, owning and operating steamship lines on the Pacific ocean, running from San Francisco to all important points on the northern and southern coast of California, and to Portland, Oregon, British Columbia and Alaska.

The fully equipped narrow gauge railroad of the Pacific Coast Railway Company, extending from Port Harford to Los Alamos, Cal., a distance of sixty-five miles; which company owns extensive wharves at Port Harford and large grain warehouses along its line.

With these several forms of ownership necessitating the keeping up of a corresponding number of distinct corporate organizations and systems of account, the company's actual operations are carried on through the following departments:

1. The coal department, comprising the mining and shipment of coal.
2. The general transportation department.
3. The land department.

The coal lands owned consist of the Newcastle mine now worked and of coal lands not yet worked, thirty miles southwest of Seattle and near Nacora. Four large steam colliers are owned and used.

The Pacific Coast Steamship Company owns eighteen steamers, and its lines run from San Francisco to ports in Alaska, British Columbia, Puget Sound, Oregon, northern and Southern California.

The stocks owned are $3,000,000 (entire issue) of the Seattle Coal and Transportation Company; $2,[illegible] (entire issue) of the Columbia and Puget Sound Railroad Company, and $1,969,400 (out of $2,000,000) of the Pacific Coast Steamship Company. The Pacific Coast Railroad is part of the property of said Steamship Company.

The general balance sheet is as follows:

Stock		$5,000,000
Bonds		4,973,600
Floating debt and accounts		1,894,013

Additions to the cost of property last year amounted to $1,212,513, as shown in the income account. The floating debt is for additions to property and betterments now in progress.

The earnings and income were as follows:

	Earnings.	Expenses.	Net earnings.

Coal in nos and coal docks		115,148
Extension of Pacific coast R. R.		605,525
			1,5[illegible]3
Balance Nov. 30, 1882			$190 088

Expenses as given above include taxes and insurance. The payments from net income, outside of interest, were all for additions to property.

The total amount of coal mined and shipped during the year from the mines near Seattle was 145,3[illegible] tons, the average cost per ton at the mine being $1 31, and delivered at San Francisco $4 49. The steam colliers were for part of the year employed as freight boats between Portland and San Francisco.

The Pacific coast steamers carried during the year 67,[illegible] passengers and 265,[illegible] tons of freight, an increase of 38 per cent. in passengers and 15 per cent. in freight over the previous year.

The Pacific Coast railroad was not fully completed and equipped until October, and the earnings were made on only a small part of the line for ten months of the year.

No special effort has been made to sell or utilize the lands of the company, for the reason that they will not sell to advantage until made accessible by the completion of railroads now in progress.

WOMAN AS AN INVENTOR.

In the May number of the North American Review is an article with the above heading by Matilda Joslyn Gage, vindicating her sex from the false charge of having no inventive faculty. Much of the article is devoted to some very shadowy claims of very ancient date, too remote for investigation, and sustained only by frail tradition. It is not only possible, but probable, that the textile quality of silk and cotton may have been discovered by women, but we do not remember before to have seen the claim urged that the real inventor of the cotton-gin was a woman. Here it is made distinctly and with such minuteness of detail as to inspire confidence. The widow of General Green is the accredited discoverer. After the revolution General Green settled in Georgia, where he soon after died. His widow was left with a cotton plantation. The difficulty of separating the seed from the cotton was the principal matter of concern and conversation. It was a day's work for a negro to separate a pound of black seed from the lint. Planters' families engaged in this long, slow work as a regular evening's employment. While thus often employed Mrs. Green is said to have conceived the idea of the cotton gin, and entrusts its execution to Eli Whitney, who was then boarding with her. The first attempt with wooden teeth failing, Whitney was ready to abandon the enterprise, but Mrs. Green's faith grew stronger and more fertile, suggesting the substitution of wire, and within ten days from the first conception of the idea the completed model, in working order substantially as it now exists, was finished. No single invention has proved of greater value. Instead of one pound 300 could be cleaned with the same amount of labor. The patent was taken out in Whitney's name to save the lady from ridicule and loss of social position.

Among other valuable inventions made by women, mention is made of the mower and reaper by Mrs. Manning, who first suggested the combination of teeth and cutters, which was patented in her husband's name in 1838. Other improvements of the mower and reaper are the invention of women. The simple, but invaluable idea of the gimlet screw was the suggestion of a little girl.

Mrs. Mary E. Walton is the inventor of the most successful contrivance for deadening sound on elevated railroads, a subject on which Edison worked for a long time. The same lady has taken out a patent for a smoke burner, said by British officials to be the greatest invention of the age.

The deep-sea telescope, so useful on many accounts, is the invention of Mrs. Mather and was improved by her daughter. Miss Maggie Knight invented the machine for the manufacture of satchel-bottom paper bags, and refused $50,000 for the invention soon after taking out her patent.

The proposition seems to be pretty well made out that there is no ground for the assertion that woman is deficient in inventive faculty, but in proportion to her opportunity and effort she has shown herself the peer of man. And further, that her inventions have been of practical value to mankind as much as those of men. The growth of invention is indicated by the fact stated that in the reign of George II the annual average of patents was only fourteen. Now they average 5000 per annum in Great Britain and 15,000 in the United States.

Vine Training and Fertilizing.

St. Helena (Cal.) Star.

The modes of training the vine vary in different countries, and even in the same country. In Italy they are allowed to run upon trees and trellises, spreading and hanging in festoons from tree to tree. Travelers often speak of the effect as picturesque and beautiful. Throughout the greater part of Europe the vines are trained low. The French and Germans prefer low training, and though the fruit is diminished in quantity its quality is improved by its obtaining more of the sun's heat through reflection and radiation from the ground. It appears that in some of the sandy parts of Spain the vines are allowed to trail upon the ground. The different modes of culture and pruning have an undoubted influence on the quantity and quality of the wine as well as the health and longevity of the vine. The same climate, soil and mode of culture often produce wines of very different qualities. Aspect alone, whether northern or southern exposure, bottom land, hillside or summit, produce wines of very different characters. Every district, and sometimes a single vineyard, produces wines of very distinctive properties, and from which they derive their names. Thus the wines of Portugal, of France, and the Rhine each have their peculiar character, and many brands are each the product of particular vineyards, their qualities depending on the varieties of the grape as well as on local circumstances and modes of manufacture. As regards using fertilizers for vines, we find various opinions, some maintaining that manure should not be used where the production of wine is the object, from an idea that the manure affects the flavor of the wine. Many French winegrowers are of this opinion, and in the port yielding district of Alto Douro, in Portugal, the use of manure is prohibited by law. In Germany it is very freely employed, as also in the vineyards near Bordeaux where the clarets are made. The prunings of vines themselves are thought by some to be the best manure.

An Embarrassing Situation.

A cotton buyer for a New England factory lately met in Mississippi a colored preacher, who explained, during a conversation on religion, that he was doing the Lord's work on a salary of $8 per year, and that his congregation was in arrears for the last year's salary to the tune of $5.

Piles are being driven from the wharf at the coal bunkers down to the entrance of the dry dock and from that point along the bank for some distance below. Planks will be fastened to these to form a barricade to prevent the swash from the waves produced by passing steamers from washing away the embankment during high water.

TO-DAY'S CELEBRATION.

There will be no postponement of the corner stone laying, or picnic, of the Odd Fellows to-day on account of the weather. At the present writing, 2 o'clock A. M., the sky is clear, the moon and stars shining brightly, and the prospect good for beautiful weather to-day. The excursion will undoubtedly be large, and from the care and forethought exercised in making the arrangements, it will most certainly prove a pleasant one. If you can't get off at 8 o'clock be on hand on the east side opposite the Clarendon hotel at 10:30. You can come home at 5 o'clock if you do not wish to wait till 7 o'clock. THE CITY COUNCIL.

FIRE LIMIT BOUNDARY EXTENDED WEST TO FOURTH STREET.

[illegible]

[illegible] provisions relative to the construction of chimneys, flues and partition walls and directs that means of ingress and egress to public halls, churches, theaters, etc., under the charge of the board of fire commissioners, that main aisles shall be twelve feet wide and made to swing outward and inward, and that main aisles shall be at least four feet wide.

After the ordinance had been read twice Councilman Kellogg entered and took his seat.

Holman moved that the rules be suspended and the ordinance be placed on its final passage.

Kellogg objected.

Holman explained that the board of fire commissioners under whose direction the ordinance had been prepared were anxious that it should pass with the least possible delay. One provision was intended particularly for the doors of New Market theatre which must be changed if they are to be safe, and this change had better be made after the present dramatic season closes and before the next begins. The construction of several dangerous fire traps on Fourth street rendered it absolutely necessary for the safety of the business part of the city, that the fire limit be extended to Fourth street.

Kellogg had not heard the ordinance read and was opposed to passing the bill through unless he was convinced that an emergency existed.

Holman explained that if the ordinance is over until the next meeting three weeks hence no less than forty frame shells would be rushed up in the mean time.

Mayor Chapman said that it would not affect the intending builders who had already made contracts.

Kellogg then withdrew his objection, the rules were suspended and the ordinance passed by unanimous vote, Kellogg by consent being excused from voting.

Providing further improvement of Front street from Madison to Clay passed.

Adopting the report of the city surveyor on the lateral extension of North Third street passed.

Providing for the improvement of Washington street from Twelfth [illegible] passed.

Authorizing the enlarging of the fire cistern at Seventh and Jefferson to 20,000 gallons capacity passed.

Adopting the report of viewers in the proposed extension of North Twenty third street [illegible] street North Twenty second street [illegible] passed.

Authorizing the Transcontinental Street Railway Company to construct a line on Thirteenth street from G to S and on S street from Thirteenth to Sixteenth read twice and referred to committee on ways and means.

ENGROSSED ORDINANCE.

To change and establish the grade of West Salmon street passed.

RESOLUTIONS.

The following resolutions were adopted:

Instructing the chief of police to remove a dwelling on lot 8, block 43, Couch's addition, which extends into Sixth street as recently widened.

Giving notice of the proposed improvement of Sherman street from Third to Fourth by grading, laying sidewalks and crosswalks and macadamizing roadway full width.

Granting thirty days further time to the [illegible] and Paving Co. to complete contract on Fifth street.

Directing the city surveyor to survey the proposed opening of a street to be known as D street, on the west line of North Nineteenth to a point [illegible] feet west of Nineteenth street.

Giving notice of the proposed lowering of the grade of Hooker street at South Second four feet.

Instructing the city surveyor to survey a lateral extension of North Fourth street, ten feet on each side, from A to I.

Relieving the committee on streets from further duty in the matter of a franchise to the Transcontinental street railway. Adjourned.

CALL FOR W. C. T. U. CONVENTION.

To all women's temperance societies, of whatever name, also to pastors of churches and to certain women of the state of Oregon:

Dear Friends: There will be a convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of the state held in Portland June 19 and 20 for the purpose of organizing a state body. Miss Frances E. Willard, president of the Woman's National Christian Temperance Union, and Miss Anna Gordon and perhaps other christian workers from a distance will be present to aid us.

The union has auxiliaries all over the country and is gaining in interest in numbers and importance every day. Its influence is being felt in every direction and a reform is begun which with God's continued help and blessing will result in great good if not in the complete downfall of the national sin of intemperance. The central idea of all our work is to release the body and soul from the thralldom of satan and to enthrone Christ as Redeemer and Lord in the individual heart, as his spirit in the home and in the state.

We beg the delegates from every Woman's Temperance society in the state [illegible] We also invite any woman who has the temperance cause at heart, whether she belongs to any organization or not, to come and learn what women are doing in the land and to take home with her such information, documents, etc., as shall enable her to organize a Woman's Christian Temperance Union in her own locality.

Pastors of churches of every denomination are requested to appoint one lady delegate from their churches. Entertainment will be furnished to delegates.

A committee will be in waiting on the arrival of the trains on the evening of the 18th and the morning of the 19th to direct delegates to their places of entertainment, and it is requested that they wear the usual Woman's Temperance badge—small bow of white ribbon. Any coming at other times will please report at the convention.

All the temperance people of the state, men and women, are urged to co-operate in this convention and to help forward this work for God and home and native land.

MRS. H. K. HINES,
State President W. C. T. U.

Any further information will be cheerfully given by letter.

ENTERPRISE.

The New York Market in New Quarters.

Among the enterprising and talented business men of this city none rank higher than Chas. A. Malarkey, the proprietor of the New York market, formerly located at Second and Oak streets, but now just opened in new and elegant quarters at the corner of Fourth and Morrison. Mr. Malarkey leased the ground upon which the market is built and has erected a building specially adapted to his trade, having every convenience for conducting the poultry, game, fish and oyster business in the most complete manner. When he gets properly settled in his new place the people of this city and vicinity may depend upon it that it will be a model market and one where everything in that line will be found in abundance. His friends should call and see him.

VANCOUVER.

Meeting of Woman Suffragists and Speeches by Distinguished Ladies of the Movement.

[FROM THE OREGONIAN'S LOCAL CORRESPONDENT.]

VANCOUVER, May 1[illegible].

A crowded house greeted the able lecturers from Oregon in the cause of woman suffrage last evening. The first speaker, Hon. B. F. Dennison, ex-chief justice of Washington territory, was introduced by Mrs. Duniway in the following words: "I desire to introduce to you to-night one of the first men in Washington territory who lifted his voice and pen in favor of equal rights for women."

THE ADDRESS.

The Judge spoke as follows: When I say I am an advocate of woman's rights I want you to understand what I mean and what I do not mean. I do not mean that I advocate a woman's right to desert the family circle. I do not mean that I advocate her right to abandon the duties of home. I do not mean to advocate her right to fling away a single one of the charms that adorn woman. I advocate her right to vote—to receive the emoluments of office. I do not advocate the further right of woman to gobble up all the offices [laughter] and leave the men out in the cold to root, hog or die. I am willing to trust that matter to the known generosity of women. I have never known of a woman who was not willing to make a fair divide—who would not divide her last crust of bread with a friend. [Applause.] In the name of humanity, in the name of human rights and in the name of this multitude and the poor unfortunate women in our land, and in the name of the daughters of the rising generation, I call upon you to be just, to be true to all that is right and grant equal rights to womankind.

As for the two political parties, I say if they do not do justice to women out of their ashes will rise a new and better party than has ever been on the earth, one that will go forward bearing aloft the standard of equal rights. When Pontius Pilate and the other wise owls were sitting in judgment upon Jesus Christ in Jerusalem, the high priests and the multitude crying "crucify him, crucify him," there was a woman in Jerusalem who, knowing the circumstances, sent a message to Pontius Pilate, saying "He is not guilty of the charges; have nothing to do with the condemnation or crucifixion." That was a woman's judgment. There was no Judas Iscariot among the women. [Applause.] No women was heard crying "crucify him." On the contrary a woman with a sad heart was the last to leave the cross and the first at the sepulchre.

But in proof of woman's worth we have an example within our own experience—how women rallied around our country's flag in its hour of public danger. Have we forgotten how they sacrificed upon the altar of our country the fruits of their lives? Are we too selfish, niggardly and mean to extend to them that which belongs to them?

Mrs. Dougherty, the able volunteer of Oregon, followed Judge Dennison with a few well timed remarks advocating her cause with most excellent arguments.

Mrs. John W. Cochran of Vancouver, an enthusiastic advocate of woman's suffrage, was called from the audience, making a short and brilliant address of which the following is an extract:

Hitherto legislation has been characterized by a selfish expediency. Since the days when the old revolutionists stopped writing and fighting, our public affairs have pivoted upon expedients and not principles. Politics rather than duty has been the study. Questions fundamental to all governments, of justice, of truth, of liberty and political purity, have been ever unpopular. The most unpopular and detested of all questions has been that for which the revolutionary war was fought, for which this government was confederated, and in whose essential spirit our constitution and laws were established. Now the moment you bring into our public affairs woman's influence, her stronger moral sentiments, her love of disinterested kindness, her deep and eradicable sentiment of purity, her moral courage and faith in all that was good, her yearnings and aspirations for the higher, serener and more heavenly truths, the moment you bring together in public affairs masculine strength and female refinement, then you will have God's foundation for moral purity and public peace, and great moral interests and questions of humanity will take the place of selfishness and quarreling expedients. The speaker closed with a brilliant peroration amid great applause.

The Hon. Byron Daniels was introduced and read a short address favorable to the question at issue. He was followed by Dr. Ella Whipple of Vancouver in a few remarks which were well received. Mr. Banks also spoke briefly on the subject. Mrs. Hayden after having determined to make a speech resolved to do so upon the ground that a collection be taken. It was taken and she came forward amid applause and bowed and set [illegible] much to the disappointment of all.

The climax of the evening, the jolliest speech of all and the one that will never be forgotten, was one offhand speech by Hon. Columbia Lancaster, a veteran 80 years old, who said that he had never been in a meeting of this kind before, and after talking for [illegible] of woman [illegible] some time kept recurring to the fact that he had not made up his mind. The house was kept in perfect roar, and though it was 11 o'clock the audience sat patiently enjoying the flow of talk and merriment.

NOTES FROM THE DALLES.

THE DALLES, Or., May 14.

Messrs. Moore, Grimes and Bolton have bought the cattle band of Orville Donpel's cattle. The price paid was $28 per head.

Mr. J. B. Dickerson is lying very low. He is not expected to live. Dr. Jones from Portland was sent for and reports his illness very serious.

A government officer from Vancouver is in town buying up all the eligible black horses. There seems to be no difficulty in procuring all he wants.

Fishermen are working up their tackle and making ready for the annual trips to Fifteen mile creek. Large trout are being hooked from Mill creek also.

The warm weather for the past few days has given old Columbia a boom. The water is some feet higher than ever known before at this time of year.

The weather is dividing itself off into watches, consisting of two days warm and one cold, with a shower every other night. The periodical winds have not put in an appearance yet.

The O. R. & N. Co. paid off yesterday and everything went on as smoothly as ever. A very few drunks were run in and the night was not at all filled with noise as is usually the case.

One day last week a team of Judge Laughlin's became frightened and but for the assistance of Ben Snipes would have run away. As it was the pole was demolished and quite an excitement created.

Boat riding and sailing are getting to be favorite amusements. Nearly every week hails the advent of a new pleasure boat. It is wonderful how few accidents happen considering the roughness of the Columbia here at times.

The Knights of Pythias are continually drilling in expectation of the grand tournament to take place June 5, in which five other lodges will also participate. Several handsome prizes are offered for the best drilled company, also for the best commanding officer. The ball in the evening promises to be the most recherche affair of the season—in fact the grandest ever given here.

ALBANY NOTES.

[FROM THE OREGONIAN'S LOCAL CORRESPONDENT.]

ALBANY, May 16.

A new roof adorns Mr. McConnell's residence.

Professor Paul, principal of the Turner schools, is in the city for a few days.

The new fountain recently placed in Mr. Foster's yard is about completed and is the largest in the city.

"Bread on the Waters" was presented the second time at the Y. M. C. A. hall last evening, and as before was greeted with a full house. The play gave general satisfaction, the actors all acquitted themselves with credit, and the Blue Ribbon club's treasury is increased about $100. The receipts amounted to $129.

Wires were stretched across the Calapooia some distance below where young Knighton was supposed to have been drowned, and last Monday the body carried down by the current was caught and secured. Yesterday forenoon all that was mortal of the once promising young man was given a Christian burial in the I. O. O. F. cemetery near this city.

The second masquerade given at Dannals' hall last Monday evening was another grand success. Over thirty maskers were present and all vied with each other in having a good time. The prizes for the best sustained characters, lady and gentleman, were awarded to Miss Nettie Porter and Walter Porter. The most handsome costume of the evening was worn by Miss Annie Settlemire, and Mr. George Hawkins [illegible] notice for the manner in which he was attired.

ASTORIA NOTES.

ASTORIA, May 16.—[Special.]—Frequent fatalities of the bar seem to have no terrors for Columbia river fishermen. The dead body of J. H. Winkler was brought to town to-day. Three fishing boats were swamped and capsized near the Great Republic yesterday afternoon. All were saved but Winkler, and he disappeared. His net was afterward recovered and the drowned man found entangled in it. Winkler was a brother-in-law to Doctor Jay Tuttle, and was much respected.

Another boat was capsized in the Clatsop spit breakers and one man drowned, name not ascertained.

One party of Villard's engineers are now surveying between Tongue Point and the Smith route. Another party is on the summit near the Nehalem valley.

The Salmon run is greatly improving.

Philip Neis et al. vs. Isaac F. Yocum—No. 966. Action for damages.

(1.) MUTUAL AND DEPENDENT UNDERTAKINGS.—The undertakings in a contract whereby one party agrees to sell and deliver an article to another on the demand of such other at a certain place and upon the payment by him of a certain price are mutual and dependent, but before either party can maintain an action against the other for non-performance of such contract, he must aver and show an offer of performance on his part or a readiness and willingness to perform according to the circumstances of the case.

(2)—SPECIAL DEMURRER.—Under the code of C. P. special demurrers are not allowed, but if the allegations of a pleading are open to the objection of indefiniteness or uncertainty, the remedy is by motion, under §48 of the code, to make the same more definite and certain.

(3)—DEMAND—ALLEGATION OF.—Y. agreed to sell and deliver to N. and B., a certain place, for a certain price, a certain quantity of hops, upon the demand of said N. and B., but without any time being specified in which such demand should be made: Held, in an action by N. and B. against Y. for the non-delivery of the hops, that an allegation that the plaintiffs had demanded the hops from the defendant without stating when, was sufficient on general demurrer; and that an allegation that they were ready and willing to receive and pay for the hops without stating when or where, was also sufficient.

(4)—ALLEGATION OF READINESS AND WILLINGNESS TO RECEIVE AND PAY FOR AN ARTICLE.—Where it is agreed that an article shall be delivered to the buyer by the seller at a certain place for a certain price on the demand of the former, and the demand is made for the delivery on a certain day, in an action for the non-delivery of the article, it is sufficient to allege that he was ready and willing to receive and pay therefor, at the time and place appointed, but if the seller has the article at such time and place, in such action the buyer must also allege and show that he then and there offered to receive and pay for the same.

DEADY, J.

The plaintiffs, citizens of California, bring this action against the defendant, a citizen of Oregon, to recover the sum of $22,750 damages for the alleged non-performance of a contract for the sale and delivery of 65,000 pounds of hops on demand, at Eugene.

The complaint alleges that on October 17, 1882, the defendant sold to the plaintiff 65,000 pounds of hops for 60 cents per pound, and then and there agreed with the plaintiffs to deliver them said hops at the town of Eugene, Oregon, on demand, therefor; "That plaintiffs have always been ready and willing to receive [illegible] and have offered to receive and pay [illegible] and have demanded the same from said defendant, but the said defendant although requested so to do, has hitherto [illegible] refuses to deliver the same to [illegible] said plaintiffs," to their damage as aforesaid.

[illegible] defendant demurs to the complaint, for [illegible] not appear at what time or place [illegible] demand for the hops was made, or [illegible] the plaintiffs offered to receive and pay [illegible], or that the plaintiffs were [illegible] willing to receive or pay for the [illegible]

[illegible] of the parties to this contract [illegible] and dependent—to be performed [illegible]. The defendant was not [illegible] the hops until the plaintiffs [illegible] and paid for them, nor [illegible] bound to pay for them [illegible] delivered. But if either [illegible] this contract against the [illegible] more than show the default [illegible] a performance [illegible] on his part or according [illegible] of the case, that he was [illegible] to perform at the time and [illegible]. Dunham v. Mann, 8 N. Y., [illegible] Anderson, 1 Hill, 519; Lester [illegible] N. Y., 436; Goldsborough v. Orr, [illegible] Ry. Co. v. Howard, [illegible]

[illegible] undertakings of the parties to [illegible] and dependent—to be [illegible] performance or [illegible] and willingness [illegible] and place appointed are [illegible] to the right of either [illegible] action for the default of [illegible] these conditions are com- [illegible] mutual and neither [illegible] the other.

[illegible] the contract obliges the plaintiffs [illegible] the hops, and as no [illegible] within it was to have [illegible] imply that it should [illegible] reasonable time, the [illegible] contemplation being con- [illegible] it could hardly be supposed [illegible] dealing with reference [illegible] than the crop of that [illegible] in the contemplation [illegible] the plaintiffs would [illegible] within the usual [illegible] the crop annually produced [illegible] the point where the [illegible]. It is not understood [illegible] depot or a place where [illegible] expect at the year [illegible] where the hops grown [illegible] are received and [illegible] Portland and elsewhere.

[illegible] it may be that [illegible] delivery are in con- [illegible] to be concurrently performed [illegible] understood circumstances [illegible] warrant the conclusion [illegible] entitled to more or less [illegible] was made to collect and [illegible] Goodly v. Anderson [illegible] But a demand without an [illegible] to devolve upon the [illegible] delivering the hops [illegible] therein and [illegible] And therefore [illegible] as the demand [illegible] within the category [illegible] held; that when [illegible] an article at a certain [illegible] another agrees then [illegible] for it, that in an [illegible] the former, for the [illegible] contract, it is sufficient [illegible] that he was ready and willing [illegible] appointed, to receive [illegible] without going farther, [illegible] offered to pay for it also. [illegible] is to be present [illegible] appointed, ready and [illegible] perform his contract on his [illegible] for the article purchased [illegible] does nothing his right [illegible] complete. He is not [illegible] the highways or elsewhere [illegible] who may have no place of [illegible] anywhere in the vicinity, [illegible] making a tender of payment. [illegible] 1 Hill, 523.

[illegible] in pursuance of a demand or [illegible] in his contract, has the [illegible] at the time and place [illegible] buyer must show an offer there [illegible] for it, before he can maintain [illegible] the non-delivery.

[illegible] of the law, the facts [illegible] are more than sufficient [illegible] to maintain this action. [illegible] of readiness and willingness [illegible] of an offer to receive and pay [illegible] demand. These facts, in connection [illegible] contract stated, constitute a cause of [illegible]. The complaint is sufficient to support [illegible] judgment for the plaintiffs. [illegible] the demand may not be stated [illegible] particularity, and the complaint [illegible] would be liable at common law [illegible] demurrer for not stating when it [illegible] made and the time appointed by it for the [illegible] of the hops; still, if the parties [illegible] upon it, the allegation [illegible] is sufficient to admit the proof of [illegible] to a legal demand, and in [illegible] of a verdict for the plaintiffs and a motion [illegible] arrest of judgment, it would be presumed [illegible] proof had been made. Clark vs. [illegible], 19 Barb., 58; Banner vs. Bank of Columbia, 9 Wheat., 586; De Sobry vs. Nicholson, 3 Wall., 420.

Special demurrers are not allowed by the code of C. P. In § 63 thereof the grounds of demurrer to a complaint are specified, but none of them include the mere manner of stating a fact or the defective statement of material matter. By subdivision of 6 of this section the defendant may demur to the complaint on the ground that the facts do not constitute a cause of action; and this objection is not waived by a failure to demur, but may be made on a motion in arrest of judgment.

Doubtless there are cases in which the time wherein an act was done or occurred is material, and the statement of the fact without the time would not constitute a cause of action nor an element of one. But in a case like this, when the agreement is that the article shall be delivered on a demand, not required to be made within any specified time, the allegation that a demand was made without mentioning any time is a sufficient statement of the fact to support a verdict, and therefore a general demurrer will not lie to the complaint on that account.

If for any of the reasons heretofore suggested the demand was delayed so long as to amount to evidence of an abandonment of the contract by the plaintiffs and the discharge of the defendant from his obligation to deliver the hops, that fact with the circumstances may be set up as a defense to the action.

Nor is it probable that the place of making the demand, if it was made upon the defendant in person, can ever become material. It was to be made upon the defendant, and of course might be made wherever he could be found. The agreement does not require it to be made in any particular place. And if it was made upon the defendant constructively, by being left at his actual or supposed place of business or abode with a third person, and he is advised that such a demand is insufficient, he may deny the allegation of a demand and contest it on the proof.

Neither is it necessary to allege at what time and place the plaintiffs were ready and willing to receive and pay for the hops. Such an allegation necessarily refers to the time and place of delivery. Porter vs. Rose, 12 John., 211.

And in this case, the contract fixes the place of delivery and the demand should fix the time of it.

If then the allegation concerning the demand is indefinite as to the time when it was made and the time thereby appointed for the delivery, as to render "the precise nature of the charge" uncertain, the defendant's remedy is not by special demurrer, but by motion under § 84 of the code of C. P., to make the complaint more definite and certain in this respect.

Nor do I think the undertakings of either of the parties of this contract are conditions precedent within the purview of § 86 of the code of C. P., which authorizes the performance of such conditions to be pleaded by stating generally that the party duly performed all the conditions on his part.

And particularly is this the case, as to the demand, the one undertaking which comes nearer being a condition precedent than any other to be performed by the plaintiffs. For the contract being silent as to the time when or within which the demand was to be made, any averment of performance of this condition which did not state "the facts" of such performance would be open to the objection of indefiniteness and uncertainty. But even in the case of a contract with stipulations which are conditions precedent a general averment of performance of such stipulations can only be sufficient where the mode and time of performance is substantially detailed in the contract, and not left to the judgment or discretion of the party bound to perform.

The demurrer is overruled. Walter W. Thayer for the plaintiffs; Rufus Mallory and James K. Welson for the defendant.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

The Mines of the Country.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The annual report issued by the mint bureau upon the production of gold and silver for the calendar year of 1882, is ready for the press. It will be a volume of about 600 pages, giving in detail the output for each state, territory and mine in the United States. The grand totals shows a decrease in production of gold bullion for the year amounting to some $200,000,000. The principal decrease was in California, where it amounted to $ 300,000, an in Dakota. There was a small increase in Colorado and there was a large percentage of increase in mines in the Appalachian ranges. The mines of Georgia showed an increase of fully a hundred per cent, and those of North Carolina fifty per cent. The aggregate output from these mines is small, but the increase is so marked that it is expected at an early day to be considerable. The product of silver for the year showed an increase over the previous year of $2,000,000. The principal increase was in the output of the Wood River district in Idaho and Lake Valley district in New Mexico. The mines of Nevada and Colorado pretty nearly held their own. For the first time in the history of the country there was a shipment of silver-bearing ore from North Carolina. In the opinion of officials of the mint bureau, based upon recent investigation, the mines of the Carolinas, Georgia and Virginia are attracting the attention of capitalists who develop them to a degree unprecedented, and it is believed profitably.

The Tucson and Port Lobos Road

TUCSON, A. T., May 15.—A Hermosillo special says: The directors of the Tucson and Port Lobos railroad perfected the local organization of that road here yesterday. Construction from Port Lobos will probably be commenced next month. Mexican commissioners will pay $9000 per mile as fast as each mile is completed. The length of the road—from the gulf to Tucson—is 185 miles, over a level country. The company closed negotiations to-day for coal fields running from the Sonora railroad across the Yaqui river. The purchase includes an area of 1,100,000 acres of land which includes only coal; price, $2,680,000. The nearest coal developed is within eight miles of the Sonora railroad. A road will be laid to the Sonora railroad and the coal shipped to Guaymas and the north to Arizona. The purchase includes most of the coal land in Sonora. Tucson excursionists were received at Guaymas with a great ovation by officials and citizens. A military band and over 1000 citizens were at the depot when they left Guaymas for home.

A New Railroad Terminus.

TULSA, I. T., May 15.—The Atlantic and Pacific railroad has just completed a bridge over the Arkansas river to this point. In a few days track will be laid to the new city of Red Fork on the west bank of the river, where very extensive stock yards have been established. The bridge is over 1400 feet long and has been built in the short period of twenty days. From Red Fork the cattle drive will be shortened 180 miles.

The Storm at Kansas City.

KANSAS CITY, May 16.—So far as known but little remains to be said regarding the storm of Sunday night. No important additions have been made to the list of casualties in this city or outside. The work of repair in the city is progressing rapidly and all needy sufferers are cared for. Reports from other parts of the state show that the ground was quite generally covered by last night's dispatches, and the losses as given then are generally accurate.

Bloody Kansas.

EMPORIA, May 16.—Governor Glick, in an interview last night, said that the trouble at Dodge City had grown out of a misapprehension in the management of local affairs and the feeling between the parties became so intensified that many citizens of that place expect a fight, and not without cause.

Fitzharris Guilty.

DUBLIN, May 16.—The trial of Fitzharris, as an accessory, after the fact, to the murder of Cavendish and Burke, was concluded this morning. The jury returned a verdict of guilty against him, and he was sentenced to penal servitude for life.

"Times Change and We Change with Them."

Houston (Texas) Post.

Through the kindness of a neighbor The Post has had the pleasure of looking over a copy of the old Charleston Mercury, published August 27, 1831. We took the faded, yellow-tinted paper with reverence in our hand, and, reading the date and name of John A. Stuart at the head, the picture of the grand old journal in its vigor and power, rose vividly before our mind. In that day the Charleston Mercury was the leading paper of the south; certainly of the south below Richmond. It was always ably edited, and was run upon its political merits. Its neighbor, but not rival, the Courier, was an excellent paper, also, in those days, but eschewed politics and confined itself to commerce and to general business. The Courier grew to be rich and prosperous after the Mercury and succumbed to the results of the war and had utterly perished. But for thirty or forty years the Charleston Mercury absolutely ruled the political sentiment of South Carolina, and was the favorite journal of the majority of the southern states. The Mercury was edited according to the fashion of the old regime. Elaborate editorials adorned every issue, stuffed full of all the trickery of Johnsonian English and affecting the lofty and somewhat ponderous tone of Mr. Calhoun, the political idol of the state. These articles were really very able, but would now be esteemed ridiculously heavy and inflated. Not that all the editorial matter was of this character, for Mr. Stuart was the master of a facile and witty pen and put up habitually neat and telling editorials in singularly terse English. But the old cotton magnates were fond of long-winded political discussions, carried on in an abstracted and stilted manner, and the Mercury was served for many years by a coterie of leigh lawyers and aspiring young sprigs of aristocracy, who had more brains than energy and who, unwilling to go into plebeian employment, yet had no objection to pull off their gloves, sub rosa, and give the world the benefit of their cleverness through the columns of the Mercury. This grand old paper was truly a power in its day. Men swore by it as they swear by God. It shaped the sentiment that supported the nullification paradox, and that started a stormy affirmative to the ordinance of secession. It was always dignified, moral, high-toned and a strange mixture of ultra democracy and high toryism. A wonderful institution was the Charleston Mercury in its day and generation. It was a political pope, and the man exposed to one of its bulls of excommunication was ever afterward politically dead. After the death of Mr. Stuart it was edited by a very remarkable young man, William R. Taber, an Apollo in form, and possessing brilliant talent and an elegant address. He became involved in a political quarrel with Judge Magrath, an honored citizen, but a man of rather independent politics, and the attacks of the Mercury were esteemed so gross that the editor was challenged by a younger brother of the judge. The challenge was promptly accepted and the parties met without delay on the race course, a few miles out of the city. At the first fire Taber was shot through the brain, and the community was plunged into the sincerest sorrow and consternation at the sudden taking off of one of the most promising young men of America. The Mercury was afterward edited by R. Barnwell Rhett, a kinsman of Taber's, who displayed unusual vigor in his editorials. Mr. Rhett, it will be remembered, was afterward connected with the New Orleans Picayune, and met Judge Cooley on the field of honor and killed him. The Mercury preserved its prestige through the war, but upon its close collapsed from financial inability, and as its occupation was literally gone, has never been resuscitated. The Mercury was a pronounced representative of bygone times. Its columns are invaluable to the critic and historian of the era when cotton was king and when no gentleman unless "heeled" like a Petigru could afford to dispute the divine right of democracy and secession. A grand, brave, pig-headed paper, once the greatest power in the land, but long dead as a door-nail!

The Disagreeing Doctors.

New York World.

The question in dispute really comes down to the question whether it shall be lawful for a regular physician to give the benefit of his skill and knowledge to a patient on the application of an irregular physician. It seems rather hard for a humane person to maintain the negative of this proposition. Let us freely admit that all homeopathic, eclectic and other varieties of irregular physicians are quacks, whom it is the bounden duty of every regular physician to pursue and persecute to extirpation. If a homoeopath were ill, and desired the services of a regular physician, the regular physician would not, perhaps, be justified in ridding the world of a monster and a competitor by the exhibition of heroic doses of strychnine. But let us assume that he would be justified in leaving the quack to perish miserably by his own nostrums, and, in spite of his deathbed repentance, to die in his sins. But this is not the actual question. People do not generally desire consultations unless they are seriously ill, and the question is whether the patient shall be left to die, after wasting his substance on rival quacks, instead of being saved by spending some of it upon truly scientific men. In other words, is the employment of a quack a capital offense and an unpardonable sin, not to be forgiven even when it is repented? Theological rancor never went quite so far as this, except in the famous instance of the English vicar who was called from a dinner party to attend the bedside of a dying pauper, and who resented the interruption when his parishioner began to talk of his hopes of heaven by peremptorily informing him that he ought to be thankful he had a hell to go to. But this is an extreme and solitary exception, which the sticklers for the dignity of the medical profession seem anxious to convert into the rule. Ordinarily, a patient who had become discouraged concerning his spiritual condition under the ministrations of a Baptist might call in an Episcopalian clergyman with perfect confidence that he would not refuse to come nor to employ whatever remedies the prelatical pharmacopeia contained for the relief of the sufferer. He certainly would not tell him that he deserved to be damned for having called in a rival and irregular practitioner in the first instance. And yet this is precisely the ground that the regular practitioners in medicine take. There are, of course, many men of real professional eminence among these, but the names on the other side which it is proposed to add to the list of quacks are those of men who have done quite as much as their rivals to retain for their profession the respect of the public; and there are among the adherents of the old code a considerable proportion of persons whom no patient will desire to consult unless his disorder is mental, and whose professional standing is only secured by the excitement which, to a layman, looks so much like a mixture of ignorance and bigotry.

TRADE AND COMMERCE.

WEDNESDAY, May 16.

General trade has ruled quiet yet steady. Imports continue large and include much that we raise at home, the large immigration calling for more than is produced here.

Freights quiet, with nothing reported as doing. At San Francisco a spot wooden vessel accepts 45s having waited five months. Holders here generally ask 2s 6d advance on above. Futures slow, Britain asking rates operating against business.

Wheat in no local business. Advices to-day report inactive foreign markets, the large arrivals having a depressing effect.

Little doing of especial interest in the local produce market. Hay is coming forward from the upper Willamette and even the Sound. Cured meats increasing in receipt but remaining firm. California butter, 1 25 cents. Chickens in larger receipt, with $[illegible] outside price. Eggs quoted 27½c, with large receipts and weak market.

Receipts past 24 hours have been 1522 bbls flour, [illegible] ctl. oats 33,300 lbs bran, 3,000 lbs middlings, 274 sks potatoes, 69 bls hay, 495 lbs wool, 7940 lbs hides, 25 lbs butter, 5271 doz eggs. Also, 550 bbls flour, 58,123 lbs wool, 2040 lbs hides and 300 lbs Angora goat wool from the eastern section.

SHIPPING NOTES.

The Ger sh Fritz, hence with wheat shipped by Cesar & Co., has arrived out in a passage of 134 days.

The Brsh Ayrshire, hence with wheat shipped by Gibson, Church & Co., has arrived out in a passage of 151 days.

The Brsh Birker, hence with a cargo of wheat shipped by Gibson, Church & Co., has arrived out in a passage of 137 days.

The Ger bk Elizabeth, hence with wheat cargo shipped by Cesar & Co., has arrived out in a passage of 131 days.

The Br ship Lord Kinnaird hence with flour cargo shipped by Gibson, Church & Co., has arrived at Liverpool, in a passage of 123 days.

Of the Oregon grain fleet of November all have arrived out except the ship Empire, now 180 days out. Of the December fleet the Patrician, Zoila and Lake Ontario are yet on the way, all sailing in the last two days of December. Four vessels, the Zamora, Melusine, Fulda and Pendragon, of the January fleet are on the way. The Oregon fleet generally have reported good passages, one or two of them being the best made from this coast.

The ship C S Hurlburt is now 195 days out from New York and fears are entertained as to her safety. She has not been reported into any port for repairs and, we believe, has not been spoken since leaving New York. The Western Belle is 144 days and the Titan 138 days out from New York, and should be along soon. Vessels coming to this coast from the Atlantic side have not lately reported quick passages. The auxiliary steamer Geo. W. Homer, also from New York, is 109 days out. She is considered an experiment and was to steam through the Straits of Magellan to save several days time. It is a question yet whether such vessels will pay and the Homer is attracting considerable attention in consequence. She is only expected to use steam in the event of calms, but the engines and necessary fuel carried detracts considerably from her paying freight cargo room.

The Glenbervie is 140 days out from Liverpool. As she comes via Honolulu she is not yet due. The steamship Madras is daily expected although no advices of her leaving Honolulu are had.

With the exception of the vessels above named there is none known to be due at this port. Probably the first to come from Australian ports will be the Grasmere with coal. She should be along in June. An Australian steamer is now one which will bring new dates.

The Lombardian goes down the river Friday with full cargo of flour. She crossed in just four weeks ago to-day, discharged her cargo in excellent condition and leaves for Liverpool direct. Captain McDonald has made many friends while at this port who join in wishing him a quick passage and hope to see him return here.

The cargo of the Ryevale is coming out in good condition.

GOOD BABIES.

'Tis a jolly day from east to west,
For children thrive, and mothers rest,
The darling girls all named Victoria,
And with the boys, they have Castoria.
It is a fact, there is no "may be,"
A mother's milk can't save the baby,
While sweet Castoria digests their food,
Gives them health and makes them good.

FROM A PHYSICIAN.

LUNDY, Mono County, Cal., June 23, 1882.

GENTLEMEN: I have sold WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY for twenty years on this coast, and I consider it one of the best patent medicines sold for Coughs, Colds and all affections of the Throat and Lungs. I keep a drug store here in connection with my practice. Yours, respectfully,
R. C. GUIRADO, M. D.

FROM A DRUGGIST.

I will state with pleasure that during the time I have been in the drug business I have sold many kinds of patent medicines, the most of which have fallen into oblivion as soon as the advertisements were suppressed. It is not so with DR. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY, which has kept its own advertising by its standard medicinal virtues. I have sold it in this city for over twenty-two years.

THE BAD AND WORTHLESS
Are never imitated or counterfeited. This is especially true of a family medicine, and it is positive proof that the remedy imitated is of the highest value. As soon as it had been tested and proved by the whole world that Hop Bitters was the purest, best and most valuable family medicine on earth, many imitations sprung up and began to steal the notices in which the press and people of the country had expressed the merits of H. B., and in every way trying to induce suffering invalids to use their stuff instead, expecting to make money on the credit and good name of H. B. Many others started nostrums put up in similar style to H. B., with variously devised names in which the word "Hop" or "Hops" were used in a way to induce people to believe they were the same as Hop Bitters. All such pretended remedies or cures, no matter what their style or name is, and especially those with the word "Hop" or "Hops" in their name, or in any way connected with them or their name, are imitations or counterfeits. Beware of them. Touch none of them. Use nothing but genuine Hop Bitters, with a bunch or cluster of green Hops on the white label. Trust nothing else. Druggists and dealers are warned against dealing in imitations or counterfeits.
